DETAIL / THE BRANCHWORK DRAWS THE EYES

7:56:08 A.M. / A SECOND LOOK

The face switched on.

The treetop touched the sun. Tiny silhouettes landed inside the bright disc and read, for a moment, like eyes looking back.

One minute later.

The sun cleared the branches and the expression disappeared. The control frame is part of the story: a small change in angle, an entirely different reading.

8:01:24 A.M. / THE PUZZLE MOVED

DETAIL / RED LENS GHOST

The puzzle moved into the tree.

A shift in angle traded the solar face for a translucent red lens ghost. Branches inside the flare offered a new field of possible figures - a highlight puzzle made by light, glass, leaves, and the eye.

FACE ON. FACE OFF. PUZZLE MOVED.
